Mr. Miller, 48, grew up in the Hudson business. His late father. Carl, who had been an Oldsmobile salesman, was awarded a Hudson franchise in 1933 and chose his location - which is out of the way, even for Ypsilanti - because the building could be rented for $25 a month. Throughout the Depression Carl Miller sold 30 to 60 cars a year, with each transaction carefully recorded in ledgers still in the filing cabinet behind the owner's desk. The pent-up postwar demand for cars and the excitement generated by Hudson's low-slung "Step-Down" models brought an upsurge in business in the late 1940s, but the growing dominance of Detroit's

He succeeds Wn Xueqian, 66, who was named a deputy prime minister and who is expected to retain overall control over China's foreign policy apparatus.

Mr. Qian, who has spent nearly all his career in the diplomatic ranks, has been involved almost exclusively in dealings with the Soviet Union, where he was stationed for 10 years, and Eastern Europe. Other significant appointments include the naming of Li Guixian as a state councillor and governor of the People's Bank of China, the country's central bank, and Li Tieying as minister of the state education commission, which oversees all education in the country. Both men bring no visible expe ience to their new positions.

Panel Upholds Challenged Pulitzer

NEW YORK (NYT) — The executive committee of the Pulitzer Prize Board has unanimously affirmed the Pulitzer awarded to a Philadebhin. Inquirer reporter after considering a challenge to the award by the National Journal.

 The Pulitzer board said Monday that the five-member executive is committee had "found no cause to question the award of the 1988"
 Pulitzer Prize for a distinguished example of reporting on national affairs to Tim Weiner of The Philadelphia Inquirer. Mr. Weiner won the prize to Tim Weiner of The Philadelphia Inquirer. Mr. Weiner won the prize for a four-part series about a clandestine Pentagon budget used to sponsor defense research and an arms buildup.
 The Journal, a small, influential weekly magazine that specializes in government and policy reporting, had asked the board to reconsider Mr. Weiner's Pulitzer because, he said, the "linchpin" article in his series was similar to a piece that appeared in the Journal a year before.

Struck Korean Owner Idles Shipyard

SEOUL (Reuters) — South Korea's second-biggest shipbuilder indefi-nitely closed its main shipyard Tuesday after 11 days of strikes by about 10,000 workers demanding higher pay, company officials said. Officials at Daewoo Shipbuilding & Heavy Machinery Ltd's main yard on the southern island of Koje said the closure came after union-leaders on Monday refused the company's final offer of a 20-percent pay Increase. The Daewoo Corp. subsidiary said that the demand for a 55-percent, pay increase was unacceptable in view of the company's poor financial status but that management was willing to have further talks to settle the dispute. Daewoo Shipboilding reported a net loss of 69.4 billion won ($93.3 million) in 1987 because of a worldwide shipping slump.

Hijacking Trial to Be in Youth Court

FRANKFURT (AP) — Officials of a Frankfurt state court said Tuesday that Mohammed Ali Hamadeh, charged with air piracy and murder in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA airliner to Beirut, will be tried before a youth court.

The decision means Mr. Hamadeh, who is Lebanese, faces a maximum of 10 years imprisonment if convicted instead of a possible life term in an adult proceeding. A court statement listed his birth date as June 13, 1964, but said "a possibility exists that the suspect carried out some of the act he is charged with before his 21st birthday."

The statement came as defense attorneys in Düsseldorf gave their closing arguments in the case of Mr. Hamadch's brother Abbas Ali Hamadeh, who is charged with kidnapping two West Germans in Beirut. The 1987 kidnappings allegedly were carried out to force the release of Mohammed Hamadeh.

Gorbachev's Problem: Marx Was Wrong

PARIS - The deepening struggle between reformers and conservatives (reactionaries, in fect) in the Soviet Union is one that neither can win. The cause of the crisis is one that the conservatives deny, and which the reformers dare not confront: that the system rests on lies.

Three months before a national conference of the Communist Party of the U.S.S.R., the first in 50 years, planned to confirm the "democratiza-tion" of the party itself, the conflict between Mikhail Gorhachev and his opponents has been openly expressed in three important Soviet news-sovetskaya Rossiya, the daily newspaper of the Russian Republic's Communist Party, pub-lished a full-page letter March 13 from "a read-er" who defended Stalin and called his critics "left-liberal" and "cosmopolitans," terms full of menace in the days of the great purges.

The letter accused present-day reformers of disparaging "the industrialization, collectiviza-tion and cultural revolution that made our country into a global superpower." Stalin, it said, "took charge of the Russia of the plow, and left Russia in possession of the atomic bomb."

This letter could have been published only with hacking high in the Soviet power structure. It is speculated in Moscow that Yegor Ligachev, the number two man in the party, and Viktor Chebrikov, head of the KGB, are among those responsible. Moscow News, a newspaper identified with the most progressive wing of the reformers, wrote of the letter: "Make no mis-take. We are faced with an attempt to elaborate a program of resistance to perestroika."

By William Pfaff

Pravda, the newspaper of the Central Com-mittee of the Communist Party, replied April 5 in a full-page unsigned editorial, saying that the letter amounted to an opposition manifesto — again, a charged term. It said that to defend Stalling to diverge "confiler from monthly" Stalin is to divorce "socialism from morality." Stalin's crimes were "great and unpardonable." Pravda made the important argument that not only were Stalin's methods immoral, they were msuccessful. To contend otherwise, it said, is illusion devoid of historical justification."

This argument about the past is, of course, a scarcely coded argument about the future. The practical weakness of the conservatives' position is that they have nothing to propose about how the Soviet Union is to resolve a serious crisis.

But there is a crinical weakness in the reform-ers' case too, emphasized in their own argument about Stalin's policies having failed because they were false ideas. They are trying to reconcile major practical reforms in the Soviet system with a set of ideological assumptions that are not true. It is by now self-evident that detailed central management of the economy does not work. Yet the planned economy, the "scientific" form of economic management, is a fundamental Leninist assumption. It is ideologically objec-tionable to let random forces in the marketplace allocate resources and investment. Moreover, this offends Soviet morality - and it is a great mistake for the West to forget that the objectionable, as the Russians see it, to hand the system over to motivations of cupidity, to encourage individual enrichment and social inequaties.

Or take another problem, the nationalines question. A murderous conflict between Armenians and Azerbaijanis has crupted recently. It is unthinkable that 70 years after the Bolshevik revo-lution, communal and religious struggle still exists. But they do. Asked what this deception means for the once-vital U.S. Saudi military relationship, the prince icily argues that it has already been destroyed by Congress, with its standing refusal to sell the Saudis sophisticated weapons.

His scarcely concealed glee over the missile deal is more calculated than it appears. Prince Bandar is making the point theatrically that the Sandis have options other than to beg in Washington for permission to buy weapons. They will use those options, he is say-

Prince Bandar has also been in Moscow recently, discussing the Gulf with the Russians. Back in the turtle days, Washington could have safely dismissed such maneuvers and Saudi would have been back in order. Today that would be a foolish bet

It is not just the highly visible Chinese missile deal. They are backing out of commitments to belp African states such as Chad and Sudan that are threatened by Libya, and they bave been slow to meet other engagements. The Saudis plead bndgetary problems. Not Yet Afghan Peace

Secretary of State George Shultz will fly to Geneva this week for the signing of the Afghanistan accord, which promises a with-drawal of 115,000 Soviet troops. The agree-ment is historic, and probably the best that could be expected of an intricate and messy war. But it offers not peace, only the pre-lude to a peace. The very implacability that baffled Soviet attempts to "pacify" Afghanistan frustrates attempts to end this war and permit five million refugees to return. Getting the Russians out of Afghanistan has been the overriding Western goal, and the right one, since the 1979 invasion. But this end was achieved only by neglecting the underlying conflict among Afghan Marxists, monarchists, fundamentalists and ultrafundamentalists. Despising compromise, key Afghan factions seem determined to keep fighting and keep the arms flowing from East and West,

The biggest losers may be the millions of Afghan refugees in Pakistan and Iran. If the war bleeds on, it could cloud their legal status. Their camps are chiefly funded by the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, which limits belp to those fearing persecution if forced to return to their old homes. If Pakistan and Afghanistan formally themselves .

Just as murky is the matter of what happens next in Kabul. For there to be any chance of reconciliation, Mikhail Gorbachev will have to lean on the puppet regime. Although its leader, Major General Najib, talks of power sharing, he spoke with greater candor in November, saying his Marxist party "does not and will not give up its power." Even if General Najib departs, that leaves resistance leaders who quarrel as fiercely with each other as with their common enemy in Kabul. One of the seven rebel lactions is the Hezb-i Islami party, led by Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, an ultrafundamentalist accused of murdering rivals. Kabul calls him a CIA stooge; other resistance voices whisper that he is a secret Communist ally. Yet forces led by this pro-Khomeini, pro-Palestine Liberation Organization firebrand have apparently acquired U.S. Stinger missiles - and so, ominously, has Iran. With Stingers, airliners are an easy target, as shown by the downing Sunday of a Soviet-built passenger plane, Continued fighting could trigger the re-sumption of Soviet arms and bring the return of "advisers." That would prompt a parallel resumption of U.S. aid to the resistance - as permitted in a side agreement to the Geneva pact. The cruel truth is that all sides are bound to try to comesh Moscow and Washington in their continuing feuds. Thus Mr. Shultz and the Soviet foreign minister, Eduard Shevardnadze, will be signing about presidential pardons. He is certainly an authority, having received American history's most famous pardon from President Gerald Ford. He regrets not having par-doned his top aides before they were tried for Watergate crimes. Now be suggests that President Reagan should pardon his indicted former aides if he concludes that they 'lacked criminal "intent" in the Iran-contra affair. It is a grotesque idea.

Executive clemency is an absolute, un-. reviewable power, but to talk about using it now in the Iran-contra scandal is, at the very least, premature. Pardons are something to debate after trial, not before. It is as wrong to exonerate the defendants in advance as it is to adjudge them guilty. It is especially unjust for a president to pre-empt a jury's right to decide whether the defendams had the requisite criminal intent.

Richard Nixon, in television interviews Mr. Nixon's dubious premise, as expromoting his new book, is offering advice pressed after his own pardon, is that the president of the United States cannot harbor criminal intent and so cannot commit a crime. To him it thus follows that the admiral and the colonel are incapable of crime if they acted in the belief that they were carrying out a presidential wish. If any of that were true, Richard Nixon could not have been impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors - as Congress was on the verge of doing when he resigned in 1974.

Let the justice system determine guilt or innocence before there is more discussion of pardons. Pardoning Iran-contra accomplices at any time would risk the wrathful judgment of history. Pre-election pardons would profoundly obstruct justice. Postelection pardons, especially if the conspiracy trial had not yet occurred, would be cowardly contempt of the voters. - THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Hungary: The Party at Issue

The party has not the means to meet the expectations - economic and political that it has encouraged to rise; the state has not the institutions to deal with the effects of its economic policies - the bankruptcies, unemployment and high per capita foreign, debt. Economic reform, though it has been carried probably as far as the system will allow, has not been sufficient to offset steadily worsening terms of trade, faltering growth and a decline in real incomes. Political developments, including the in-beit within the one-party system), and the Kremlin's repeated insistence that reform is doomed without more democratic political structures, have revived a long-dormant tradition of vigorous political debate. Many within the Eastern bloc, including Mikhail Gorbachev, believe democratic government, political choice, loyal opposition and intellectual liberty can be accommodated by the one-party state. Most Hungarians apparently do not. They are beginning overily and coverily to press for pluralism. - The Financial Times (London).

There are German Jews, who are old now but bave been the neighborhood's backbone since before the war. And Dominicans, who fit a family into an apartment the size of the one I share with my husbard and who spread over Fort Tryon Park in the summer, with their music, babies and picnics, while the Germans, in hats, stroll arm-in-arm along the promenade. Then there are Korean merchants

Fortunately, that is clearly not the case. While there are many questions that require advanced training in mathematics, there are many simplesounding problems in number theory still to be answered. Many of them were known to the Greeks. For example, twin primes are prime numbers (which are divisible only by themselves and 1) that differ by 2, such as 3 and 5, 5 and 7, 11 and 13, and 17 and 19. verification. Then the Kremlin agreed that the South Vietnamese government, the battered American ally, could remain in power in a strongly fortified Saigon, with full international recognition.

In its desire to help Washington, Mos-cow agreed that the Americans could guarantee the South Vietnamese regime continued economic aid. Thousands of American-trained CIA agents remained in the country after the troop withdrawal. And the Soviet Union informed the Viet Cong that no more Soviet military aid would be sent, unless the Americans added someday to the huge stockpile the United States was leaving Saigon. Naturally, the Viet Cong did not like all this and felt they deserved to take power in Saigon, as the reward for defeat-ing the United States and the South Vietnamese. But Moscow, cager for agreements with Washington on other matters, overrode the Viet Cong. The only com-fort it gave its allies was to assure them that one day the Viet Cong would indeed triumph, so go to it and good luck. A fantasy, but something like it is being played out in Afghanistan. in very real life. The Russians, faced with military defeat, have wisely agreed to pull out. They are doing it pretty much on their own terms, designed to keep the Afghan Communists in Kabul in power as long as possible.

The Kabul government probably will be defeated one day. But before that day a lot more Afghan blood will have to be spilled to give the resistance the fruit of victory it already has earned

Just a Matter of Time

Press reports from Afghanistan and righboring Pakistan say that the Af-ghan army is in disarray, with defection rates of up to 50 percent. The Russians will leave behind huge amounts of weap-onry, but even if they continue to cite old treaties with Afghanistan and keep pouring arms in to Major General Najib, it is hard to imagine that his beleaguered army can stave off collapse for long. If the Afghan army, with the full Soviet military machine behind it, could not tame the mijahidin in eight years, is it likely that such a goal can be achieved once the Russians leave?

the withdrawal of Soviet forces is so welcome and desirable. This overshadows the fact that it will take place under conditions of Soviet choosing that can extend the war, not end it.

And Americans know that there are powerful groups in the Afghan resislance that are totally repugnant to them - fundamentalist Moslems eager to establish a Khomeini-type government. But Afghan specialists believe that most Afghans are not fundamentalist and that a traditional Islamic government would emerge as the choice of the people and most of the resistance. The longer the fighting goes on, the deeper the sense of betrayal, the more the likelihood of a turn toward Iran and the emergence of an Afghan Khomeini.

A U.S. Senate resolution demanding a solution acceptable to the resistance was approved by 70 senators. Some were conservative, some were among the Senate's most liberal members.

But in news stories, columns and editorials, Senate attempts to examine and question the conditions of Soviet withdrawal under the still-secret Geneva agreements are constantly referred to as coming just from conservatives and "hard-liners." This makes questioning the agreements seem just a quirk of the right and diminishes its importance. The Russians could simply do what Americans had to do in Vietnam - get, out by getting out. But a formal withdrawal agreement is to be signed this week so the May summit meeting need not be bothered with Afghanistan. President Reagan still owes the "valiant" Afghan resistance fighters he loves to praise - and the American public specific answers to specific questions: Does the agreement ensure the removal of thousands of KGB agents, Soviet and Afghan? How? Will the thousands of Soviet specialists embedded in the Afghan government get out too?

Who will run the buge Soviet-built air bases and intelligence centers? Are Moscow and Kahul turning the northern part of Afghanistan into a Communist bastion from which to fight politically and militarily if Kabul is lost? How much of a military stockpile is the Soviet Union leaving for Kabul? What economic resources will continue to flow to the Afghan Communists? Will the thousands of Afghan children now in the Soviet Union be allowed to return home? When?

Precisely what are American plans to help the Afghan resistance win the one political goal for which they have been fighting for 10 years - the establish-ment of a non-Communist government? Or are we just going to wish them well? The New York Times.

Empty Words of Horror

In response to "The Kurds' Turn for the Atrocity du Jour" (Opinion, March 26); Not a day passes without our reading of leaders of the international community "condemning" or "expressing indignation" over acts of atrocity all over the world. In recent weeks, we have heard condemnations of the holding of politi-cal hostages, the treatment of Tibetans by the Chinese, Israeli acts of violence against Palestinians, violence in Northern Ireland and the massacre of Kurds by poison gas sprayed from Iraqi planes. For years, condemnation has followed condemnation, from the pope and other religious leaders, from the secretary-general of the United Nations, and from presidents and prime ministers. These high-sounding declarations have done nothing to stop the atrocines. What is the world's reaction to the act of barharity against the Kurds? The White House expressed the usual condemnation and the U.S. government presses for an arms emhargo against Iran. If words are not to be followed by appropriate deeds, silence is wiser, for empty words repeated over and over gradually lose their meaning.

A Strange Way to Subtract

Regarding "Chemical Arms: To Have Fewer, First Have More?" (Opinion, March 15) by Enrico Jacchia:

The French government's insistence that non-chemical weapon countries should be allowed and encouraged to acquire chemical weapons and to keep them for eight years after entry into force of a convention banning these weapons is, of course, contrary to the . objective sought at the Geneva Disarmament Conference. The proposal is also based on false premises In putting it forward, the French referred to the need for undiminished security of states in the process of elimi nating the chemical weapon potential. But this could apply only to chemical weapon countries. Those that do not possess chemical weapons cannot claim that they would feel less secure at a time when other countries were destroying stocks of these weapons. JOZEF GOLDBLAT,

No Less Diligent Abroad

The headline over Robert C. Siner's story contributes to the misconception that Americans living abroad do not comply with U.S. income tax laws. A careful reading of the article reveals that the only new development is that the Internal Revenue Service plans to begin building a data base by 1) identifying overseas residents now filing returns and 2) attempting to obtain a mailing address and Social Security number for every American who obtains or renews a passport. The IRS will then evaluate the data and decide what to do with it. This can bardly qualify as "targeting tax delinquents abroad." Neither the IRS nor Congress has any reliable information to indicate substanual noncompliance among overseas Americans. The article refers to a muchdiscredited General Accounting Office report of some years ago, "which found that up to 61 percent of Americans abroad were not filing U.S. tax returns."

That report compared the estimated number of Americans abroad, including minor children, with the number of tax returns filed. A family of five covered by a joint return would, in effect, be found to include four "non-filers."

The "tandem" couples there who face assignment to other hardship posts were surprised to read that Foreign Service counterexample. So when an established tandem couples are assigned to London or Paris. In fact, at any given time more than half of our tandem couples are likely to be assigned to hardship posts. While tandem couples can complicate the assignment process, they can also be a solution. His most recent computation required six hours on a new supercomputer man-ufactured by Hitachi. Last year's effort to reach 134 million took nearly 36 hours on an NEC SX-2 supercomputer. The shorter time for the new calculation reflects the use of a more advanced, faster computer and the effects of tinkering with the computer program to speed it, up. The basic method, or algorithm, for computing pi was not changed.

Knowing the digits of pi to millions of decimal places has little practical value. In most scientific applications, 10 decimal places are sufficient, However, for Mr. Kanada and other computer ex-perts, computing pi is one way to test the speed and accuracy of new computers and to compare different computers. An error in even one of the millions of digits of pi would signal a problem in the computer or in the computer program.

Mr. Kanada's motivation for pursuing pl goes well beyond praencal value. "It's like Mount Everest ... I do it be-cause it's there." His present goal is to reach 400 million digits by next year.

Because pi is known to be an infinite decimal, there is no reason why he cannot continue his quest indefinitely --subject to the limits imposed by available computer technology. "I would like to go on and on," he says.

RENNES, France - Punctually, just in time to appear live on the 8 o'clock evening news programs, François Mitterrand materialized last week at the back of a huge tent and, with a fluttering spotlight tracking his progress, threaded his way past 20,000 jubilant partisans to a stage festooned with blue, white and red flags.

The crowd had been warmed up by the singer Charles Trenet, who belted out a nostalgic ditty: "Gen-tle France, Dear Country of My Childhood." And then the singer Barbara, who has a husky voice faintly reminiscent of Edith Piaf, tickled the piano keys and rendered "A Man With a Rose in His Hand" -a musical homage to Mr. Mitterrand.

The man with a rose in his hand." she sang, "continues alone, heading toward his destiny."

Destiny had finally brought Mr. Mitterrand down to the campaign trail. While the other candidates for the presidency have been out slogging in search of votes for many weeks, even months, the 71-yearold Socialist has been hoarding his physical strength and the advantages of incumbency, plotting a short, swift campaign.

International Flavor at Oscars

By Robert Reinhold New York Times Service

LOS ANGELES -- From the be-ginning, Hollywood has wel-comed foreigners. The first Academy Award for best actor 60 years went to a German, Emil Janago nings, and the parade of directors fleeing Nazi Europe - Billy Wild-er, Michael Curtiz, Ernst Lubitsch, Fred Zinneman - certainly enriched the American postwar film industry. Then, of course, there was the venerated Alfred Hitchcock, who was British.

Nonetheless, the glittery crowd gathering at Shrine Civic Auditorium for the 60th annual Academy Awards ceremonies Monday night found it remarkable that all five nominees for best director were non-Americans. It is the first time that this has happened.

"I'm oot surprised at this example of oon-chauvinism," said Ber-nardo Bertolucci, the Italian who directed "The Last Emperor," which won Oscars in nine categories. "I think it's great."

The others nominated were two Britons, Adrian Lyne ("Fatal Attractioo") and John Boorman ("Hope and Glory"); a Canadian, Norman Jewisoo ("Moonstruck"),

Gray's Elegy for Graduate Group

By Sheridan Morley

International Herald Tribune ONDON - Simon Gray has Liong been a master of raging academic despair bot his "The Common Pursuit," first staged by Harold Pinter in London four years ago and since then rather more successfully in the United States by the anthor, continues as a kind of work-in-progress --- the play Gray can neither quite perfect nor leave alone It concerns a group of college graduates in the afterlives of their university careers - lives totally shaped for better and often worse by their undergraduate meetings.

"The Common Pursuit," now at the Phoenix and directed by Gray, is therefore about treachery and homosexuality and academic disil-. lusion and everything else that makes Cambridge the center of the known scholastic universe. Gray's new producers recast his play for its second London outing with a team of alternative comedians from late-night television satire, one which can presumably bring into the play a new andience unlikely to notice that it lacks the brilliant savagery of his earlier "Butley" or "Otherwise Engaged." How private is your investment?

When you see how vast and impersonal the world of investment has become, the only "private" aspect sometimes seems to be that it's your money at stake. On the other hand, the most private and personal way of keeping your money is probably to stow it away under the mattress. You've got to strike a balance somewhere. And we have. Along with our international team of

Oil Prices Extend Recovery

But Some Doubt Gains Will Last

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches NEW YORK — Crude oil prices advanced again Tuesday after a one-day jump triggered by specula-tion that OPEC would orchestrate a broad effort to reduce world supplies. But some analysts called the recovery unsustainable.

West Texas Intermediate, the key U.S. crude, for May delivery soared to $18.10 in New York, up 21 cents despite some early profittaking. May futures had gained nearly $1 on Monday. The price of North Sea Brent, the European benchmark crude, for April loading rose 35 cents a barrel to $16.50 m late trading. On Mon-day, Brent had risen $1.

Traders attributed the sharp advance to a weekend session of the price monitoring committee of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The cartel said it would enlist help from non-OPEC producers at a meeting April 23 in Vienna to restrain output. OPEC said it would convene a "consultative" meeting of the full 13-member cartel two days later. Some analysts dismissed the explosive price reaction as a tempo-

"I see the OPEC thing as a fairly empty public relations gesture," said Carol Epstein of Petroleum Analysis Ltd. in New York.

Some analysts believe OPEC timed its announcement to buoy demand during a period of traditionally slow demand.

"The upcoming OPEC meetings are nearly as good a device for raising oil prices as actual produc-tion cuts," said Alvin Silber of Brean, Murray, Foster Securities, Eight oil producers outside the cartel have been discussing cutting their oil production by almost half a million barrels a day in exchange for a cut by the 13-nation cartel.

Asked Tuesday if a mutual cut of Asked Inesoay it a mutual cut of 5 percent was being considered, a senior Mexican Oil Ministry offi-cial said in Oslo: "That is one op-tion." A Mexican delegation was meeting with Oil and Energy Min-ister Arne Ocien, who said Norway also had been informally invited to attend the April 23 talks.

OPEC has invited Mexico, China, Oman, Angola, Colombia, Egypt, Brunei and Malaysia to the (AP, UPI, Reuters) meeting.

Wang Bingqian, a political heavyweight who has served as finance minister since 1980, is seeking ultimate authority over China's soaring foreign debt. His ascendancy reflects a shift toward a more Westernized structure in which the Finance Ministry plays a big policy-making role.

In China, a Tug-of-War Over Debt Ministry Tries to Wrest Control From Central Bank

BELJING --- In a conflict that reflects pressure for change in China's financial structure, two gov-ernment departments are battling over which should administer the oation's foreign debt, and the Finance Ministry appears likely to triumph, bankers said Tuesday. A unit of the People's Bank of China, the central bank, currently administers foreign debt. The load has risen sharply to an estimated $30 billioo from only a few billion dollars in the 1970s, when China began to open up its economy to the outside world. Eager to secure control of the prestigious and strategic sector, the Finance Ministry has proposed a new "foreign debt management depart-ment" that would take responsibility for that area from the bank, a European banker said.

A Finance Ministry spokesman said that such a department had not been established. And a Chinese banker observed that "the battle is not over."

"The PBOC is fighting back," he said. "But I tip the Finance Ministry to win, It is more powerful politically, has qualified people, and can point to the errors of the PBOC."

In most countries, the central bank reports to the Finance Ministry. But in China, the two are equal in status, with the heads of each sitting in the State Council, or cabinet.

Wang Binggian, 63, has served as finance minis-ter since 1980, and Chen Muhua has headed the central bank since 1985.

But the National People's Congress is expected to replace Miss Chen with Li Guixian, the 50-year-old party chief of Anhui Province, who has never held office in the central government. Mr. Li is an engineer with no financial experience.

Wang has excellent political connections and is a heavyweight compared to Li," the Chinese bank-er said. "The main motive of the Finance Ministry is to enlarge its empire. What department does oot want to?" . . .

The ministry has picked a good moment for its attempted takeover. Debt has risen sharply in recent years, too much of it is held in yen, and major repayments are due in the early 1990s.

"China needs a single, authoritative body to manage its foreign debt," said Tang Daisha, a delegate to the People's Congress, which recently opposed by the People's Bank of China. But the ministry will return to the Eurobood market this year in Frankfurt or Loodon, he added.

Despite the internal conflicts, China "continues to enjoy a good reputation as a borrower, with its debt-county ratio still low and export earnings strong," the Japanese banker said.

Japanese banks are competing to offer very cheap loans to China, he added, because of a taxwithholding accord between the two nations.

To Sell Stake In Airline

Canada

April 12

April 12

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatcher OTTAWA - Canada's Conser vative government plans to sell 45 percent of Air Canada, the national airline, to private investors, Depoty Prime Minister Donald Mazankowski announced Tuesday.

The government will retain a 55 percent controlling share in the car-rier, one of the 10 largest airlines in the world with routes in North America, Europe and the Far East. Mr. Mazankowski said in Partiament that no single shareholder would be allowed to acquire more than 10 percent of the shares issued, and total foreign ownership would be limited to 25 percent. There will also be a program to allow Air Canada's 22,000 employees to buy shares.

Mr. Mazankowski said Air Canada needs the equity infusion to pay for major new investments over the next few years, including 1.2 billion Canadian dollars ($970 million) to refurbish its aging fleet. But it was not immediately clear how much money the government expected to raise from the sale.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney's government announced a program to privatize Ottawa's large holdings of state-run enterprises shortly after taking office in 1984. A national poll published last month indicated that a majority of Canadians oppose selling the air-line, founded in 1937 as Trans-Canada Air Lines.

But company management, facing increasing competition from the privately owned Canadian Airlines International and Wardair, urged the government to sell at least a portion of Air Canada to give it more financial flexibility. Air Canada officials told reporters in Ottawa it would take four months to issue the shares once the legislation has been approved. The airline, with headquarters in Montreal, operates a fleet of 108 aircraft. Its president, Pierre Jeanniot, said last month that the airline was ready to purchase 34 new aircraft to renew its fleet of Boeing 727 medium-range passenger jets. On Tuesday, the airline announced a profit of 45.7 million dollars for 1987, up from 40.4 milhon the previous year.

John ing, an analyst at Maison Placements Canada Inc., questioned the timing of the offer, since Canadian shares have not fully recovered from October's collapse. icigi fix-ing and at close. "It's a brave time to go to the

NYSE Highs-Lows .40 1.1 24 26

Reacting to a consultants' report critical of the aircraft maker's management and adminis-tration, ministers from Britain, France, Spain and West Germany agreed that a shake-up should proceed as soon as possible. Airbus has emerged as a leading competitor to U.S. commercial aircraft makers, which com-plain that the consortium is unfairly subsidized by participating governments. The restructurby participating governments. The restructur-ing presumably would help wean Airbus from that aid and make it more financially accountable.

The goals for a restructuring were approved by Trade and Industry Minister Kenneth Clarke of Britain, Industry Minister Luis Carlos Croissier of Spain, Economics State Secretary Erich Riedl of West Germany, and Transport Minister Jacques Douffiagues of France. "The astonishing thing is we all agreed so quickly," Mr. Clarke said. "Airbus will have to become a project economically feasible on its

become a project economically reasone on its own." The report pinpointed three main problem areas: lack of coordination between the market-ing and finance aspects of Airbus programs, including a lack of data exchanges about costs; the absence of an overall balance sheet; and what it called an "unwieldy organization" lack-ing a decision-making committee. The four sympts commissioned by the mem-

The four experts commissioned by the member governments also warned that production delays, hefty cost overruns and loss of goodwill among major airlines could result unless man-agement changes were immediately adopted.

Airbus was formed 17 years ago by Aerospa-tiale of France, Brütsh Aerospace PLC, Messer-schmitt-Bölkow-Blohm GmbH of West Germatiale of France, British Aerospace PLC, Messer-schmitt-Bölkow-Blohm GmbH of West Germa-ny and Construcciones Aeronauticas SA of Spain, with the aid of the four governments. Aerospatiale and MBB GmbH each own 37.9 percent of Airbus. British Aerospace owns 20 percent and CASA, 4.2 percent. Mr. Croissier said a timetable for the changes would be drawn up at a meeting on May 5 in Hannover, West Germany. He said the long-term aim was to turn Airbus into a public company. "But this is not the immediate task for Airbus," he added. "The immediate task is to improve the organizational structure to make decision-making easier." The report said profits and losses should be shared by partners in proportion to invoiced work shares, and that the alloument of jobs to workers of specific nationalities should cease. It also urged member governments to consid-er setting up a European import-export bank so Airbus would not have to deal with four sepa-rate export credit agencies. This is essential if Airbus is to compete with the U.S. aviation industry, the report said. (AP, Reuters)

The surplus in agricultural trade was at 3.2 billion francs in February after a revised 3.7 billion in January.

The ministry said the deficit on energy prod-ucts for February narrowed to 4.7 billion francs from a revised 5.9 billion in January.

The ministry said that since the start of the year the deficit on the trade account has reached a seasonally adjusted 5.9 billion francs, wider than the 4.4 billion in the year-earlier period. (Reuters, AFP) Source: Sale

Ford Unit in West Germany Seeks Electronics Plant Lost by Scotland Reuters

COLOGNE - Ford-Werke AG, has asked its parent, Ford Motor Co., to consider building an electronics plant in West Germany after plans to set it up in Scotland failed, B Ford-Werke spokesman said Tuesday.

He was confirming remarks by Ford-Werke's management board chairman, Daniel Goeudevert, to the financial newspaper Handelsb-latt. In the interview, Mr. Goeudevert said Austria and Spain were also candidates for the plant, which would create 1,000 jobs. Ford said in March that it was dropping plans to build a $65 million electronics plant in Dundee, Scotland, because of labor there.

North Rhine-Westphalia has one of the highest unemployment rates in West Germany. Hundreds of thousands of jobs have been lost in the state through closings of coal pits and steel mills in the industrial Ruhr region.

The administration in West Berlin is adopting similar measures to boost industry there, the Ford-Werke spokesman said.

Mr. Goeudevert said Ford was likely to shift the development of small models to Asia in the long run, although Spain could survive as a production site in that field. But the successor to the Fiesta, now built in Cologne, will be built in West Germany and employment levels there will remain stable, he added.

G-7 Prospects Bolster the Dollar

NEW YORK - The dollar rose Tuesday on the market's belief that the meeting of the Group of Seven will reaffirm the industrial nations' assicaments on currency stability, dealers said.

They said trading was subdued, however, because of operators' unwillingness to become too involved before Wednesday's meeting of the G-7 nations and the release Thursday of U.S. merchandise trade figures for February.

In New York, the dollar rose to close at 1.6890 Deutsche marks, from 1.6825 at Monday's close; at 126.70 yen, from 126.30; at 1.3990 Swiss Irancs, from 1.3925; and at 5,7250 French francs, from 5,7010. The British pound weakened signing the firmer dollar, closing at $1,8465, down from $1,8595.

NEW YORK -- Legislation attached to the trade bill that could bar Japanese firms from acting as primary dealers in U.S. government securives could severely disrupt the bond market, many large institutional investors and traders sav.

"It would make it a much less competitive and liquid environment," said William H. Gross, managing director of Pacific Investment Management Co., which invests $16 billion in fixed-income securities for pension funds. "The Japanese dealers are the new risk-takers."

Earlier this month, a panel of House and Senate conferees agreed to an amendment to the trade bill that would bar foreign financial institutions from acting as primary dealers in government securities if within one year their own governments did not grant the same "competitive opportunities" in the underwriting and distribution of government deht.

Three Japanese securities firms now enjoy primary dealer status in the United States.

Even if the proposal becomes law, it may oot take effect if the Japanese government opens its financial markets wider to U.S. bood firms. said Representative Charles Schumer, the New York Democrat who is the amendment's sponsor. Hc added that he hoped that the threat of the proposed legislation would force Japan to open its markets. "My goal is not to pass the amendment but to open the markets," he said.

Nevertheless, many institutional investors think that any legislation restricting the bond market may prove more harmful than the situation the legislation is trying to correct. They said the United States must learn to accept that the Japanese are in part financing its budget deficit by buying an estimated 30 percent of the means a lot. For one thing, the 42 current primary dealers buy government hills, notes and bonds directly from the Federal Reserve at auctions. This gives them a market advantage

U.S. Bill Would Bar Japanese as Primary Dealers over secondary dealers. They can better determine the tone of the auction and provide their customers with better prices, said Mr. Gross of Pacific Investment Management. And many customers, like state, local and municipal governments, are required by law to conduct certain transactions only with primary dealers.

> Some portfolio managers say that these days the Japanese dealers are more aggressive in pricing and more accommodating to customers than the old-line Wall Street firms.

> For instance, Mr. Gross said that the Japanese firms were now willing to hold their price open on bonds for an extra 30 to 60 seconds. which is uncommon among American dealers. That may not sound like much, but it gives portfolio managers valuable extra time to decide whether the price fits their clients' strategy.

> Executives at the three Japanese firms that are now primary dealers were surprised and angered by the proposed amendment. "Many of us were stunned." said an executive at one of the firms, who did not want to be identified.

> Mr. Schumer said he did not think, as some investors do, that the Japanese might retaliate against the legislation by not buying U.S. bonds. Their fixed-income holdings are so large that they will not take any action that might reduce the value of their dollar-denominated

Reviewed by Keid Bethow T HE word Korea evokes two images in the American mind. One is that of a bastling little country pinned between the demographic giants of China and Japan, a place where they make Hyundai cars, Samsung televisions and Daewoo everything else. The other, held by hundreds of thousands of former U.S. service-men, is that of a desolate place where bitter cold winds from the Manchurian plains blow down block mountain valleys and there is nodown bleak mountain valleys and there is nowhere to get warm and home is thousands of miles away. The author of this amiable travel book will have none of the latter. He is a correspondent of the Smday Times of London, one of those globe-trotting Englishmen who've been every-where in the world, in war and peace, picking mp a supply of outrageously funny stories along the way. He wrote this book, he says, to show that "Korea is a truly remarkable place, a country that deserves to be better known and understood."

understood." He is surely right about that, though this slender book doesn't tell the reader nearly everything he ought to know about Korea, and in fact is only about South Korea. Still, it's well written, and Winchester, who's written the book in the form of a walking journal, is a good-natured companion with a sharp eye. What be does extremely well is to describe that immemorial Korea of rice fields glinting like mirrors in the afternoon sum, of peasants in like mirrors in the afternoon sun, of peasants in like mirrors in the afternoon sun, of peasants in picturesque dress toting bundles on A-frames, of Buddhist monks prayerfully seeking the Way, of an incredibly industrious people who have toiled like bees to achieve a level of prosperity unthinkable in the aftermath of the Korean War. And his book isn't by any means a puff piece to promote tourism this Olympiad year: Winchester has nothing but contempt for South Korea's ruling elite and reports in vivid detail the bitter feelings left in the wake of the May 1980 massacre of civilians in Kwangju by government troops. government troops.

This reader most enjoyed Winchester's often startling descriptions of South Korea's economic brawn. He goes to Ulsan, a shipbuilding center, and is overwhelmed by the memory of Tyne, in the United Kingdom, "where I had_ my first newspaper job." Caught up in nostalgia, Winchester recalls-that Newcastle in its day of industrial glory & sent Tyne-built ships to all the distant ports of call of the British Empire. "Any one of the yards on the Tyne, in the river's heyday, could, possibly manufacture four or five ships at once-in wartime, perhaps, or during a period of grave emergency or extraordinary prospecity." But one yard in Ulsan "could make forty-six ships at once. And it could do so without any of the romantic Victorian nonsense of bottles of champagne and princesses in flowery hats" at ceremonial launchings.

A Masterful Shot Also Makes Clear That the U.S. No Longer Rules the Sport

By Gordon S. White Jr. New York Times Service

AUGUSTA, Georgia - Sandy Lyle, having pulled himself together after oearly falling apart around Amen Corner, then digging himself out of a bunker with one of the more memorahle major-tournament shots to win the Masters, has made himself the premier golfer to the world. Seve Ballesteros of Spain and

Greg Norman of Australia may still have their champions but, at this moment, Alexander Walter Barr Lyle, a 30-year-old who was born in England of Scottish parents and now lives in England, is the best there is. Without the eve-catching, macho

Norman and Ballesteros now make greens-keeper. His parents, natives doubt Lyle would reach the 18th Lyle, however, was discouraged as he walked off the 18th tee moments after driving his one-iron shot into the bunker.

"I thought it was over," he said. The ball had a good lie, sitting up on the sand, not down in it, but twice before he hit his seven-iron shot, Lyle said, he had to "reach down into the bottom of my stomach."

Still, with the oerve derived from hundreds of pressure experiences in competitive golf, he hit a cearly perfect shot out of the sand to the back of the 18th green. When the ball rolled back and stopped only 10 feet above the cup, Lyle was a stroke from victory, a stroke he sent into the heart of the bole.

That shot from the sand trap will go down in Masters lore, with Larry Mize's chip into the cup on the second playoff hole to beat Norman last year, and with Gene Sarazen's fairway wood for a double eagle at No. 15 in 1935 to force a playoff he then won over Craig Wood.

The Masters was the latest in an impressive list of victories that has moved Lyle, a member of both the American and European professional tours, to the top. And this was his third 1988 victory on the PGA Tour he won the Greater Greensboro Open the week before the Masters, the Phoenix Open in February. He won the Greensboro event in 1986 for his first triumph on the U.S. circuit. He won the Tourna-ment Players Championship in 1987, which gives him four Ameri-can triumphs in the last 54 weeks, including one major. Although he joined the PGA Tour as a full member in 1984, a year after Norman; he oow has five victories in the United States, one more than Norman.

Now, with two major triumphs to his credit, and with the knowledge that he has survived as much pressure as any golfer is likely to face. Sandy Lyle has much more to win.

Speaking American shouldn't leave

By Russell Baker

NEW YORK — The general rule in modern America is that big words drive out little words. A compact word like "now," for example, is constantly ignored in fa-vor of bloated synonyms like the watery "currently" or the baffling "presently," a word Americans use to mean both "soon" and "now."

The "presently" mess shows the trouble people can get into when they pass up a short, dapper word for something gassier. If they sim-ply said "soon" when they meant soon and "now" when they meant now when they meant now, you could tell which point in time they were talking about.

By going for the pomp of "pres-ently," however, they force you to however, they force you to stop and study their sentence's verh tense to decode their meaning.

True, this isn't a hard exercise in grammar — if the verb is present tense, the "presently" means "now"; if future tense, it means that's f "soon." Still, since Americans are works. famous for their terror of grammar, it is strange that we willingly suffer it in TV weather broadcasts, which even its minor ordeals by putting up with speakers too stuffy to stick with the precisinn nf "now" and "soon

Notice the phrase "point in time," inserted above to remind the time writer to come back and say something about windy phrases after he finished dilating on "now" and "soon." On reflection, however, now that he has come back, there seems little to say beyond what we all know; to wit, that saying things as long-winded as "at that point in time" when all we mean is "then" is either a tipoff that we are in danger of being indicted or a symptom of terminal self-importance.

All this is a roundabout way of getting at "precip," pronounced "PREE-sip," which has been unusually heavy this spring in broad-cast meteornlogizing, "Precip," pronnunced "PREE-sip," is a slangy shortening of the mouth-filling "precipitation," meaning rain, snow, hail, sleet, and so on.

Broadcast weatherfolk have long used "precipitation" when they meant rain or snow, Sometimes when the forecaster can't be sure what form the falling material may take, the all-purpose "precipitation" seems sensible.

Why, however, when the temperature is 95 degrees are we told you brain-numb and mouth-tired.

Some agency executives dis-count the novelty of hiring young creatives. "I don't know when there's been a time when young people were not getting into the business," said Robert Levenson, a vice chairman and creative director of Scali, McCabe, Sloves. Indeed, the "creative revolutiou" that engulfed advertising in the 1960s was fought largely hy young writers and art directors. But Jerry Della Femina, 51, chairman of Della Femina, Travisano, pointed out that the creative revolution was followed by a period of ossification. "Six years ago, the average age of copywriters in my agency was 43," he said, while today about 40 percent are in their 20s. "That was because young people didn't come into the husiness in the '70s. We had a brain drain."

Most in the industry agree that economic conditions in the early 1970s clamped down ou creativity. "The recession put the em-phasis on MBAs," said Jerry Fields, the president of an ad mdustry recruiting firm. "Now," Fields said, "the pendulum has swung back and the demand for young creatives is very high."

Tom Ballant/The I

Reasons for the shift vary. Some people think that American agencies are belatedly following a pattern established in Britain in the 1970s, when shops competed to hire raw "juniors" straight nut nf school.

Others, such as Alice Magdol-Conrad, annther industry recruiter, think the interest in "young, fresh talent" is a counter to the trend toward industry mergers. "A lot of the younger people are in the smaller shops at the mo-ment." Magdol-Conrad said. And clients are starting to look at the smaller agencies to get fresh thinking."

Still others, such as Stephen A. Greyser, a professor of marketing at the Harvard Business School, think that if there is a trend toward the hiring of younger - and less expensive - creatives, it is because of financial pressures on agencies to cut costs in the wake mergers.
